

RALSTON SUES FOR DIVORCE

William F. Ralston, son of the pioneer William C. Ralston, who built the old Palace hotel, established the Bank of California and was drowned at Black Point the day after the war, filed his divorce suit against Mrs. Georgia Grayson Ralston, daughter of the late George W. Grayson of Oakland, wealthy realtor and miner of the old days.

The suit was filed in Reno June 3. Ralston charges that his wife, a society leader in California in the days when he was successively assistant United States treasurer and candidate for governor, deserted him in New York eleven months ago after absconding with property extending over many years.

Ralston's complaint tells a story of years of financial reverses and of the wife's faith expounded by Abdul Mahdi Hadda, Persian of "hundreds of dollars" when he and his wife, "too anxious to vary each other," sat at home in a better-off place than "made the suffering and mental anguish all the more acute."

"She took upon this plaintiff with her own hands a source of income to supply her with necessary money and means," Ralston says. "For years she has been dissatisfied with her husband and her surroundings, and has been endeavoring to secure a divorce from him with as little delay as possible."

COURT CANNOT STAY SENTENCE

In a decision handed down Friday the state supreme court wiped out the law under which district judges and justices of the peace have been releasing under suspended sentences, violators of the law who have pleaded guilty or who have been adjudged guilty by a jury. The court, in an unanimous opinion written by Chief Justice Coleman, holds that the law under which suspended sentences have been given is unconstitutional, finding that it constitutes an invasion of the powers conferred by the constitution on the board of pardons and parole.

The matter came up on an application for a writ of mandamus asked for by District Attorney Summerfield of Washoe county against District Judge Moran to compel the judge to remand Adrian (Bill) Wheeler to the custody of the sheriff. Wheeler had been convicted some time previously in the district court and released by Judge Moran to compel the judge to remand. The supreme court ordered the writ to issue, but granted a twenty-day stay of execution in order to give Wheeler an opportunity to appeal to the board of pardons for a suspension of sentence.

As a result of the supreme court's decision, District Attorney Summerfield said today that he will issue a bench warrant for the arrest of Miss Blanche Lenox, who pleaded guilty to a violation of the state prohibition law last week and was released by Sidney Foster, justice of the peace, under a suspended sentence.

BRITISH MOVIE MANAGERS AROUSSED BY AMERICANS

(Correspondence Associated Press)
LONDON, July 17.—Managers of London's moving picture theaters are up in arms against an American film producing firm which has acquired sites for motion picture theaters in London. Their agitation reached the House of Commons today when a member asked the president of the board of trade whether the government was doing anything to stop it. He was told that it did not seem to be a matter in which the government could interfere and called the member's attention to the fact that imported films are subject to duty.

London picture theater managers assert that they have been good customers of the producing company and that the latter should not now plan to compete with them on a large scale.

SNOW SHEDS BURNED

Five hundred feet of snow sheds on the Southern Pacific railroad between Soda Springs and Summit on this side of the mountains were destroyed by fire that started in the sheds at 1:30 o'clock Monday morning. All trains were tied up for several hours but the fire was put out and the track cleared and ready for traffic at 11:30 o'clock.

A high wind was blowing when the fire started and considerable track was soon destroyed.

DELAYED BY SHORTAGE MEN

The report of the Consolidated Spanish Belt Silver Mining company, issued today furnishes the following information:

Main tunnel, west drift—Owing to shortage of men and heavy timbering, this drift has been advanced only about five feet since last report. Width of ledge remains about the same, approximately four feet, with high-grade stringers and a good grade of mill ore.

Main tunnel, east drift—Has been advanced fifteen feet, with no material change in face. This drift was swung to the north some time ago to get out of heavy ground and for the purpose of tapping the Ernest vein under San Pedro shaft, where there is known to be a large vein of high-grade ore.

San Pedro Shaft last report the 45-foot level has been advanced twelve feet with the face in soft quartz showing numerous small irregularities of sulphide carrying good values. North Crosscut No. 3 has been started 161 feet from shaft. This also is in quartz with stringers of sulphide.

Another drift, will be kept about of work with Mexico.

NEW COMPANY ENTERS FIELD TO SUPPLY MINE TIMBERS

The Divide Mines Timber company is the name of a new concern that will work a revolution in mine economy through the opportunity for supplying all kinds of mine timbers ready framed. The company handles lagging, shaft sets, wedges, wooden and chain ladders and everything in the shape of timber that enters into the construction of a mine. The members of the corporation are all old timers who know the requirements of the trade. The names are W. J. Tonopah, Pioneer William Gouin, Guy L. Millard and Eugene Hinkle. The company has bought all the material belonging to the Porters and Silver Peak railroad and is first contemplated disposing of the salvage, but as the demand increased they embraced the opportunity and installed a sawmill near the power company's station where all orders will be promptly filled.

Wonder how the June brides are getting on? The chances are they know, but they won't tell.

Why is a senatorial debate? Possible a play to the galleries. No sense enough to be imagined.

Almost time for Lenin to return to New York and take up again his old job of street car conductor.
